Young Professionals Network of Jamaica Host Successful Luncheon Launch

The Young Professionals Network of Jamaica hosted one of the most successful Luncheon Launch to have been held in Kingston in recent times. The August 19, 2008 event which was held at the Jamaica Pegasus was patron by government officials, numerous high level business men and women, young professionals and several media personnel.

Yaneek Page, Founder and Director of the first Network of Young Professionals in Jamaica was commended for her vision of contributing to nation building and pulling together a team of talented young professionals. Performances were done by young professionals Nomadz and Daville.

With all the brilliance in décor and serenades of applauses to the young professionals of the network, Prime Minister, the Hon. Orette Bruce Golding added to the radiance of the afternoon in a wonderful keynote address. Mr. Golding lauded the YPNJ for their effort in putting to use the intellectual power of Jamaica's young professional and this helping in the development of Jamaica into the 21st Century.

According to him, young people bring a new perspective to development of people and nation as they see new possibilities and work towards it with great energy and willingness.

Other persons in attendance were the Hon. Karl Samuda, Minister of Industry, Investment & Commerce; Mr. Lewellyn Bailey, Asst. General Manager of Jamaica National Building Society; Mr. Joseph Taffe, Acting Asst. CEO of Grace Kennedy Investments; attorney-at-law Mark Golding, and Ms. Winsome Gibbs, Business Development Manager of Jamaica Insurance Company.

The Board of Directors, members and partners of the Young Professionals Network of Jamaica wish to express its gratitude to all those who assisted in the execution of a successful launch.
